Dr. Syed Mahfuzul Huq

Professional Officer, (NCD), WHO Bangladesh

Dr. Syed Mahfuzul Huq graduated in medicine from Chittagong University in 1983 and obtained his Master Degree in Health Economics from University of Dhaka in 2005. He joined the non-communicable disease (NCD) team of WHO Bangladesh in 2008 as National Professional Officer and working with WHO since then. His area of expertise is tobacco control, and responsibilities include providing technical support to the Government and other stakeholders to generate evidence, adopt evidence based policies and implement the policies to prevent and control non-communicable disease through health promotion, risk factor reduction and health system strengthening.